Hotel Bergwelt Grindelwald

Modern interior design for new construction in traditional style and with great attention to detail.

In the shelter of the mountains, tradition meets modernity in this instance. Below the world-famous north face of the Eiger in Grindelwald lies the newly built Bergwelt Alpine Design Resort. The hotel with 90 rooms, suites, apartments and residences fits perfectly into this backdrop with its deliberately traditional exterior. Open since June 2021, the hotel has been welcoming guests from all over the world seeking a mix of traditional architectural style and modern facilities. DUSCHOLUX has contributed to this overall concept with 90 minimalist lightly designed Air 2 shower walls.

Coordinated down to the smallest detail.

Part of something big.

The Air 2 shower walls with their barely visible floor profiles blend in perfectly with the hotel's archaic-looking bathrooms. All 90 bathrooms were measured individually in order to initiate a precisely fitting shower wall production process. The U-profile in a Stainless Steel Finish, which was mounted in advance using the flush-mounted method, played a decisive role in the accuracy of fit. By dispensing with a crossbar, the shower walls have a very high degree of transparency. The high-quality interior design is supported by free lines of sight, creating a wonderful overall picture.

High-quality furnishings.

The DUSCHOLUX CareTec Pro glass finishing is included as standard in the Air product world and supports hotel staff in easy cleaning. The permanently dirt-repellent surface considerably reduces the cleaning effort and protects the glass from corrosion. Thanks to the use of natural materials, the rooms radiate a sense of security and tranquillity. This way, the character of the hotel blends into the mountain landscape and offers an optimal retreat. The strength and courage for new things can be found here with a view of this unique panorama.
